Rainier Vista

Dedication

Though your duties have seldom permitted you to be in the forefront of campus activities, still your long hours of labor have not passed unnoticed.

For the many meals you have planned and prepared and your tireless efforts which have made our banquets a success...

For your personal interest in all the students...

For your devotion in the maintenance of Christian principles...

FLORENCE AIME, the 1967 Rainier Vista is affectionately dedicated to you.

Here are people who reflect the emotions built up inside them. What are they here for? To gain an education? Certainly. To find a closer walk with God? They should. To form new and lasting friendships and re-establish the old ones? How could they help it?

Somewhere in life a person has to pause and reflect. He must examine his mind and heart and find out what kind of a person he really is. He must determine what kind of an individual he wants to be and how he intends to accomplish this. And that's what is done at Auburn Academy. Through study, work, social life, and especially prayer, people reflect upon their lives.

Eventually they will be a reflection of the one great Pattern all are trying to copy.

Faculty

The Principal Speaks

Dear Students:

As you see these pages of your 1967 year-book, you are undoubtedly made aware of the fact that Auburn Academy is a place of more extensive activity than you had realized. This realization comes as a result of being given the wider vision of the school year through the pages of this pictorial record.

The things you see here, to a very great degree, will determine where and what you will be in the future. As the poet has said,

"Our deeds still travel with us from afar,

And what we have been makes us what we are."

It is my sincere hope that the training you have received at Auburn Academy will give you the wider vision experienced by the prophet of old. "He endured, as seeing Him who is invisible." With this vision you can see yourself fulfilling a useful place in His service in this life and appreciating the great and glorious things in the life hereafter.

Mr. Victor H. Fullerton, M. Ed., Principal, has no small task set before him. At home he gets away from it all and finds time to keep in touch with the outside world.

Elder Fullerton keeps the faculty informed regarding progress in education.

Registrar

The vice-principal and registrar prepares for registration, is in charge of curriculum organization, evaluates transcripts, plans school bulletins, and faces major responsibilities of attendance and accreditation.

The registrar's office is always a scene of activity.

Mr. Arthur H. Nelson, M. A. , vice-principal and registrar, working on the Glance, has little time for relaxation.

Mrs. Delmarie Null, study hall supervisor, issues a pass to Bill Pittman.

Mrs. Mary Lou Rowe and Rita Donahey spend many busy hours each day at the center of communication.

Business Office

The business manager is in charge of the financial operation of the school. He is assisted by an accountant, who cares for student labor, manages the school store, and keeps and balances records of all financial accounts.

Elmer Lampson, B. S. , who doubled as the Academy's business manager and bookkeeping teacher, studies globe after accepting position as business manager of Helderberg College in Capetown, South Africa. He and his family left Auburn in February.

Accountant, Mr. Kenneth Ladd, B. S. , relaxes after a busy day at the office.

An efficient worker, Laura Libby, counts money in the business office.

Foreign Languages

Communicating in a foreign tongue involves written and oral comprehension. Language laboratories are established daily in the Multi-purpose Room and in the dormitories from 7:30 p.m. until 9:00 p.m. week nights. These labs, under the direction of student supervisors, allow for greater individual progress in Spanish, French, and German.

Elder Vernon Berry, M. A., devoted French teacher, retiring after this year, spends much time "tending" his flowers and writing poetry. His pleasant smile and words of wisdom will be missed in the classroom next year.

Elder Waldemar Stoehr, M. A., prepares lessons for Hebrew History, German I, and Spanish I classes.

Guidance

Young people reflecting on the past need help for the future. Guidance is essential in directing and shaping lives, so that the future of each individual may be rewarding in all aspects.

Elder Duane H. Anderson, M. A., heads Auburn Academy's guidance department. Serving as a Youth Guidance teacher, he finds time for a pleasant chat with Dennis Rouse.

Elder Ed Norton, M. A., B. D., teaches junior and senior Bible classes, works as assistant in the guidance department, and still finds time for his favorite hobby--mountain climbing.

Facing Life

Elder Norton, minimizes the confusion of registration. Helping students with difficult schedules is part of the work he loves.

Don Monson, Dick Fleming, and Elaine Hack, find chemistry experiments an interesting facet of their school work.

Science And Mathematics

Mr. Harold Weir, B. A., who is truly an outdoorsman, tells no tall tales while teaching Biology and Chemistry.

Mr. Wesley Parker, M. S., instructs in Advanced Mathematics, Geometry, Physical Science, and Physics. Here he takes time to feed his pet parrot.

Mr. Charles Null, nightwatchman, assists with the P. A. system. In his spare time he enjoys tuning pianos.

History

History reflects upon the past so that the future generations might benefit. It is not merely dry facts and data but an intriguing and revealing study of the science behind the events.

Closed-circuit television was used in various classrooms.

Mr. Ron Miller, B. A., challenges his students in U. S. History and Bible Doctrines. He enjoys many pleasant hours with his movie equipment at his home.

Mr. Larry Hasse, B. A., dealing with world events in Contemporary World Affairs, U. S. History, and Washington State History, travels to and from school on his Suzuki.

English

English is the study of language, literature, and composition. It is more than just a collection of words without meaning or direction of intent. It is doing projects which bring the student closer to a goal of confidence--a skillful use of English as a tool of creative ideas and experience.

Mr. William Lowe, B. Th., studies his rock collection when he is not preparing lessons for his New Testament and English III classes.

Mrs. Laurinda Crays, M.A., the competent English and Speech teacher for the upper classmen, is also director of the Rainier Vista Staff.

Mrs. Marie Lowe, B.A., who teaches sophomore English, Health, P.E., Developmental Reading, and Algebra, finds little time to devote to her stamp collection.

Secretarial Science

Efficiency is the keyword in Secretarial Studies. The students learn how to work with rapidity and competency in their operation of office machines, in typing, and in shorthand. A new calculator and an adding machine were added to the department this year.

Mr. H. F. Crays, M. A. , enjoys reading after a day of teaching Shorthand, Office Machines, and three typing classes.

Elder Clifford L. Witzel, M. Ed. , a devout amateur radio operator, teaches Business Mathematics and Electronics.

Business Mathematics

Mr. Crays' typing students punch keys dutifully.

Mrs. Bessie Soule, B. A. , dedicated librarian, also teaches Home Economics, but uses her spare time at her hobby.

Library

The library, hub of learning, with its gold carpet, carrels and other modern equipment, is conducive to research and study. The 6,660 volumes and 85 magazine subscriptions aid in acquiring knowledge.

Senior Donna Hall works hard at keeping the library neat and organized.

Mrs. Charlene Wertz assists in the library and supervises study halls. At home she can be found at her sewing machine.

The library offers many services to the students and staff.

Mrs. Gladys Dickerson provides the homelike warmth to all "her girls" in the dormitory. It's a big order to be dean of women and she finds little time for needed homework.

Senior Ellen Wilson keeps busy taking incoming calls in Nelson Hall.

For the students in both dorms, a school day begins with the sound of a buzzer at 5:30. Then there's the mad rush to get ready for breakfast and worship. Classes begin at 7:10 for the Sophomores and Seniors, while the Freshmen and Juniors go to their various work assignments. After the break for dinner there are more classes and work appointments. The supper bell rings at 5:15, and then to worship. By 7:30 everyone is ready to settle down to study until "lights out" at 9:30.

Nelson Hall

Assistant dean, Miss Yvonne Follett, is always ready to open her door to all the girls. Here she gives friendly advice to Karen Jacobson, at left.

Mary McNerney is worn out after a long study period.

Mr. Kermise Rowe, B. A., dean of Witzel Hall, spends much time counseling, guiding, and encouraging the boys.

Witzel Hall

Growing boys need those extra snacks as demonstrated by Walt Kiselback, Virgil Kiselback, and Trevor Lindgren.

Mr. David Mummert, B. A., assistant dean in Witzel Hall, also teaches algebra and P. E. No matter how trying his day may be he always finds time for his daughter, Amy.

Casa Loma officers, Steve Brown and Jim Stephens, accept Christmas gift from Kathy Brown and Zita Tadej who represented the Maidens of Zeta Kappa.

Home Economics

Home Economics, the art of homemaking, pertains to home management, child care, clothing construction, and food preparation. In the home economics department, located in the basement of Nelson Hall, there are twenty-one sewing machines and four kitchen units including sinks, ranges and decks, and two refrigerators.

Miss Frances McKnight, B. Ed., Gibson Hall girls' dean, has time for her girls even with two English classes and three Home Economics classes.

Mrs. Lois Berry, R. N., finds a few spare minutes from administering medical attention.

Health

Connie Martin and Jan Parker develop their culinary skills.

Mr. James Hanson, B.M.E., choral music director, spends most of his time directing the Sylvan Chorus, the Choir, and giving private lessons.

Mr. Leland Quinn, B.M.E., proudly displays his postcard collection. He is in charge of instrumental music and conducts both the touring and the concert band.

Music

Music enriches the lives of many people. Approximately 50% of the students are engaged in music activities.

Mrs. Ausil Witzel assists in piano instruction.

Mrs. Lorraine Spady teaches piano to Academy students.

Mrs. Jeanne Miller instructs students in the techniques of a pianist.

Departments

Cafeteria

Satisfying the appetites of over 400 hungry students, supplying banquets and other special dinners, tax the imaginations and skill of cafeteria personnel.

"Preparing a special dinner is not all drudgery" says Mrs. Florence Aime, food director, to Mrs. Marie Chadwick, assistant.

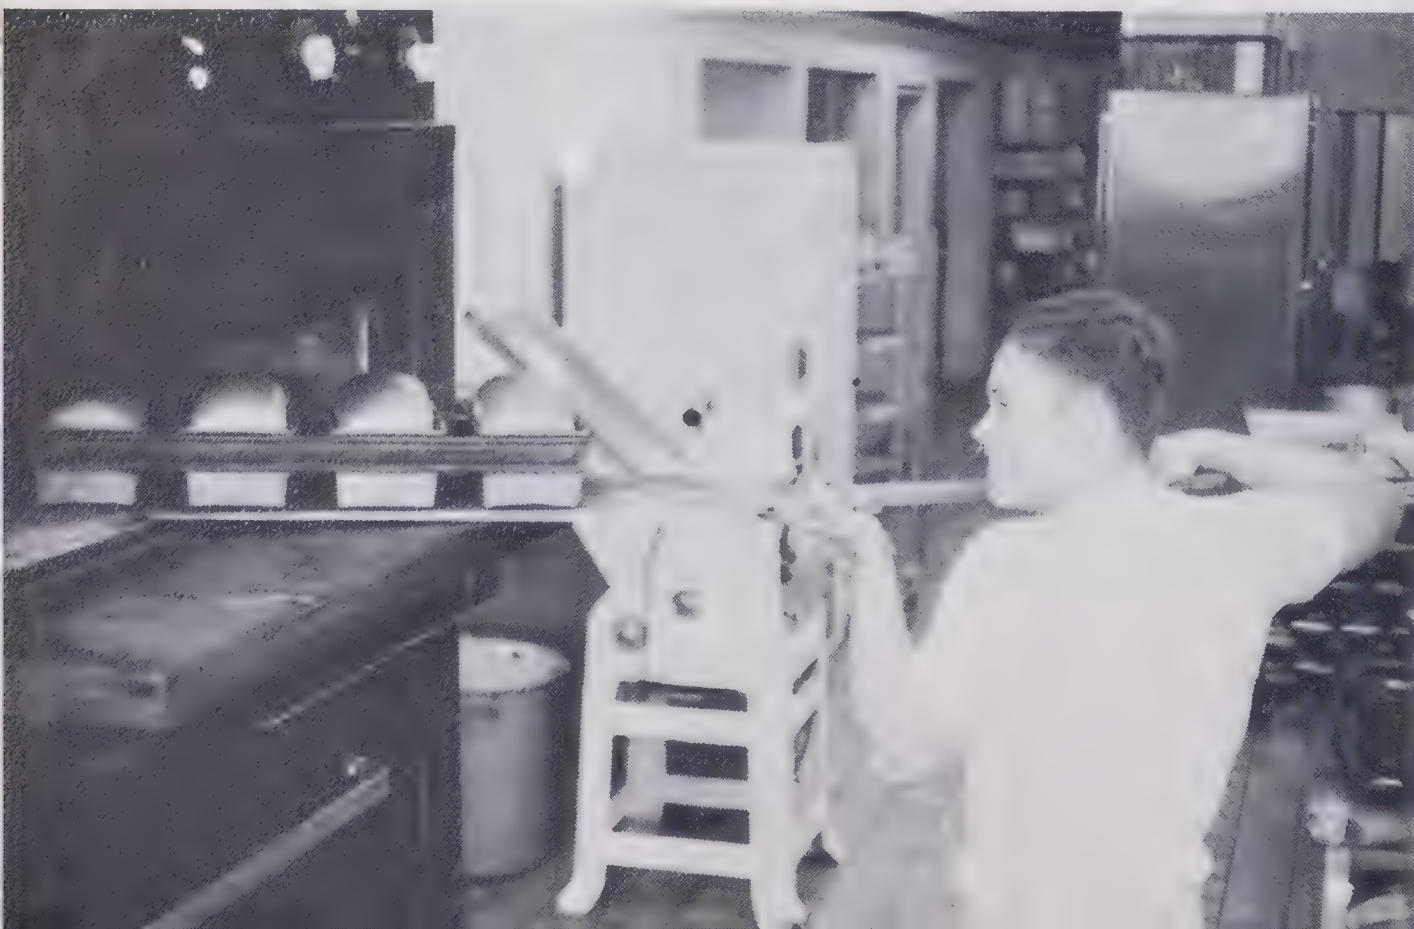

Mrs. Dorothy Donahey, cafeteria supervisor, spends much of her time at home writing to her son and eighteen other boys in Viet Nam.

Mrs. Rosemary Farver, cafeteria assistant, enjoys listening to relaxing music.

Phil Wiley has a warm feeling of satisfaction as he removes hot bread from the oven.

Students at the dishwasher earn a substantial part of their expenses.

Store And Laundry

Keeping clothes in tiptop shape and supplying food for the body and mind are the responsibilities of the store and the laundry.

"Now I'm going to have plenty of clean clothes for the weekend," says Gary Babcock.

"Will this one be all right?" Myrna Dorr asks Fred Dalgleish.

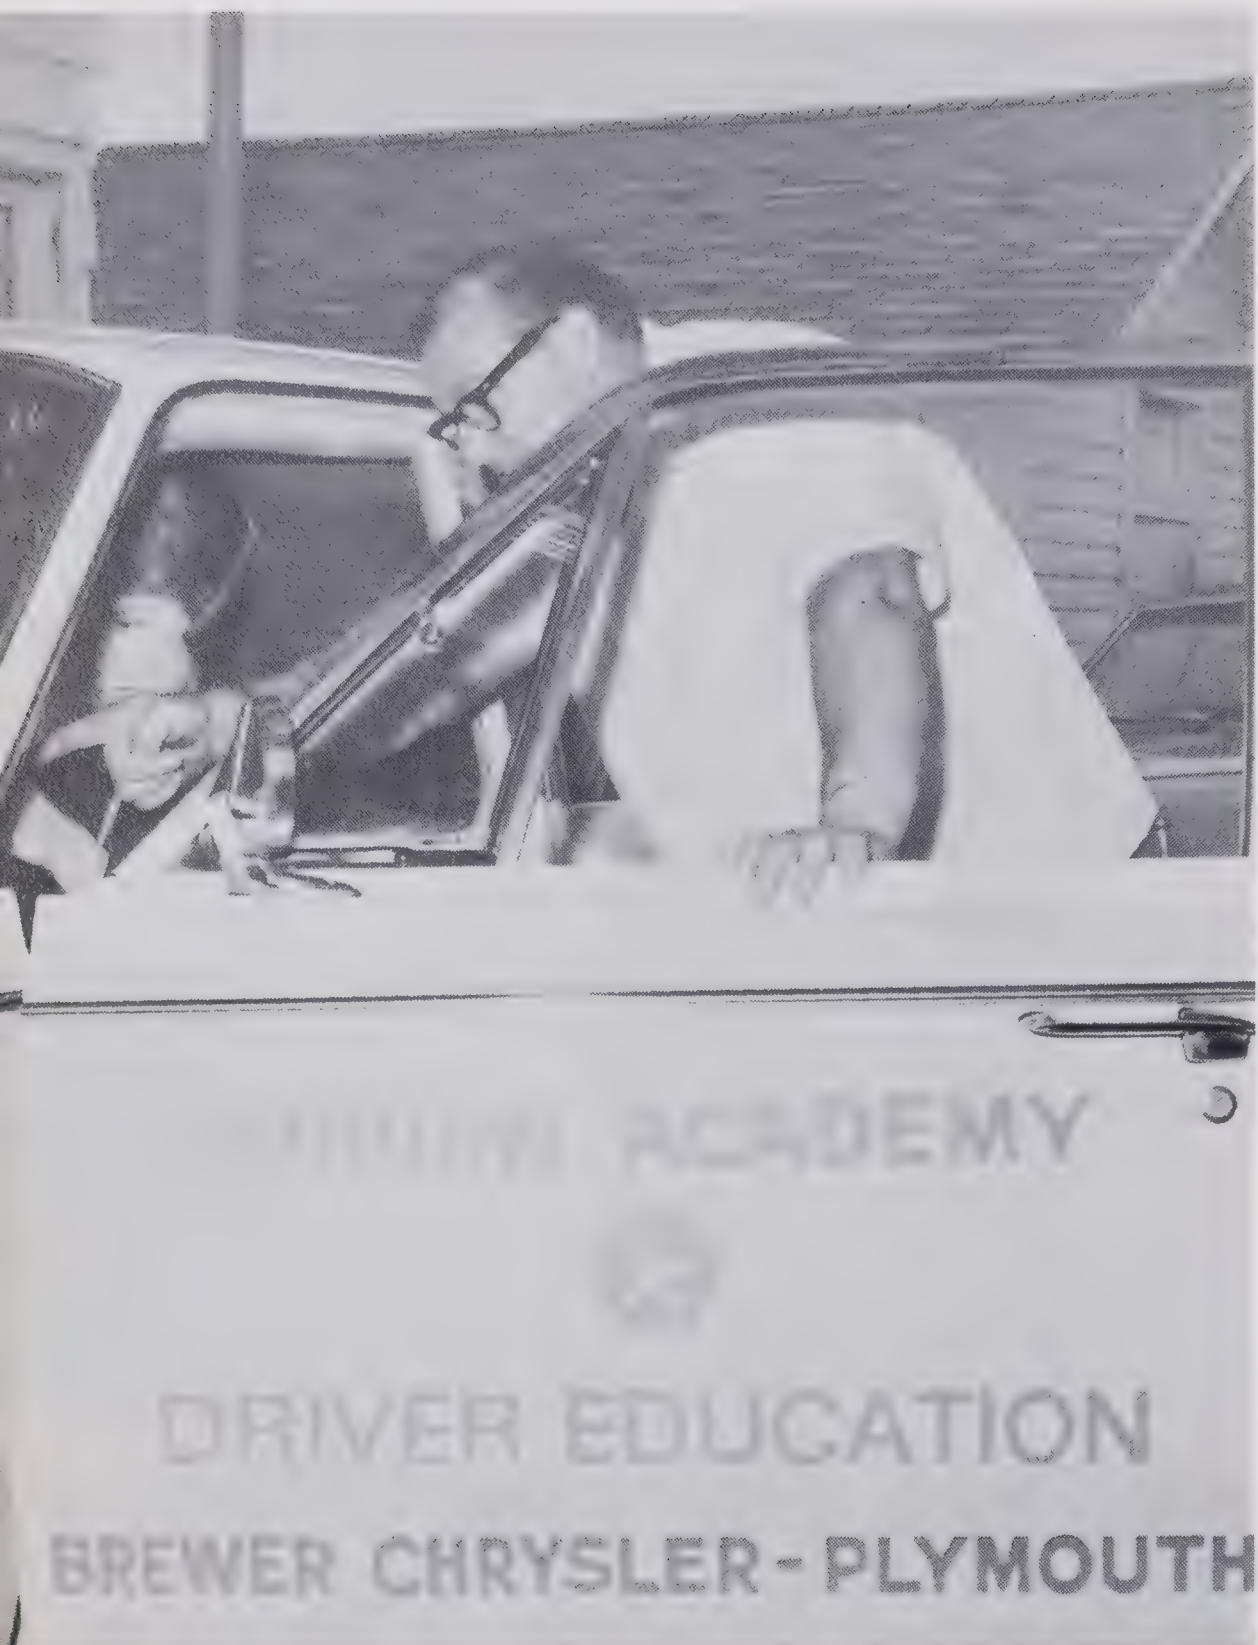

Mrs. C. Mundy, laundry supervisor, relaxes after a busy day.

Mrs. A. Weir, left, store supervisor, shows Trudy Campbell just the right thing for a rainy day.

Driver Education And

Mr. Robert Farver, B.S., gives Aileen Mitchell some aid with her driving lesson. He teaches driver training and auto mechanics.

Campus beautification is an important job of the grounds' crew.

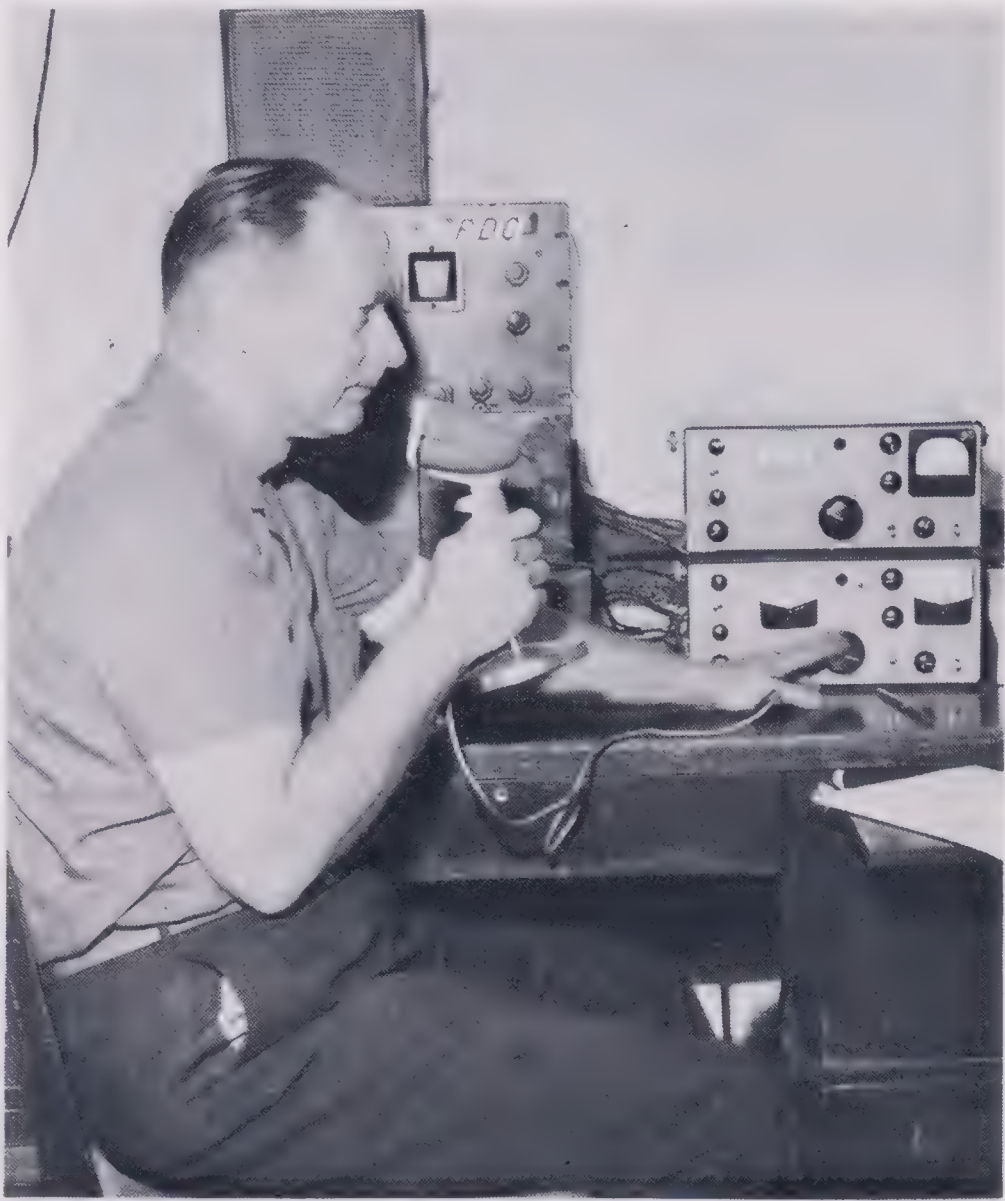

Mr. Don Mundy, grounds supervisor, takes pride in caring for his cattle.

Brawny men of Casa Loma apply sheetrock in their struggle to rejuvenate this tired house.

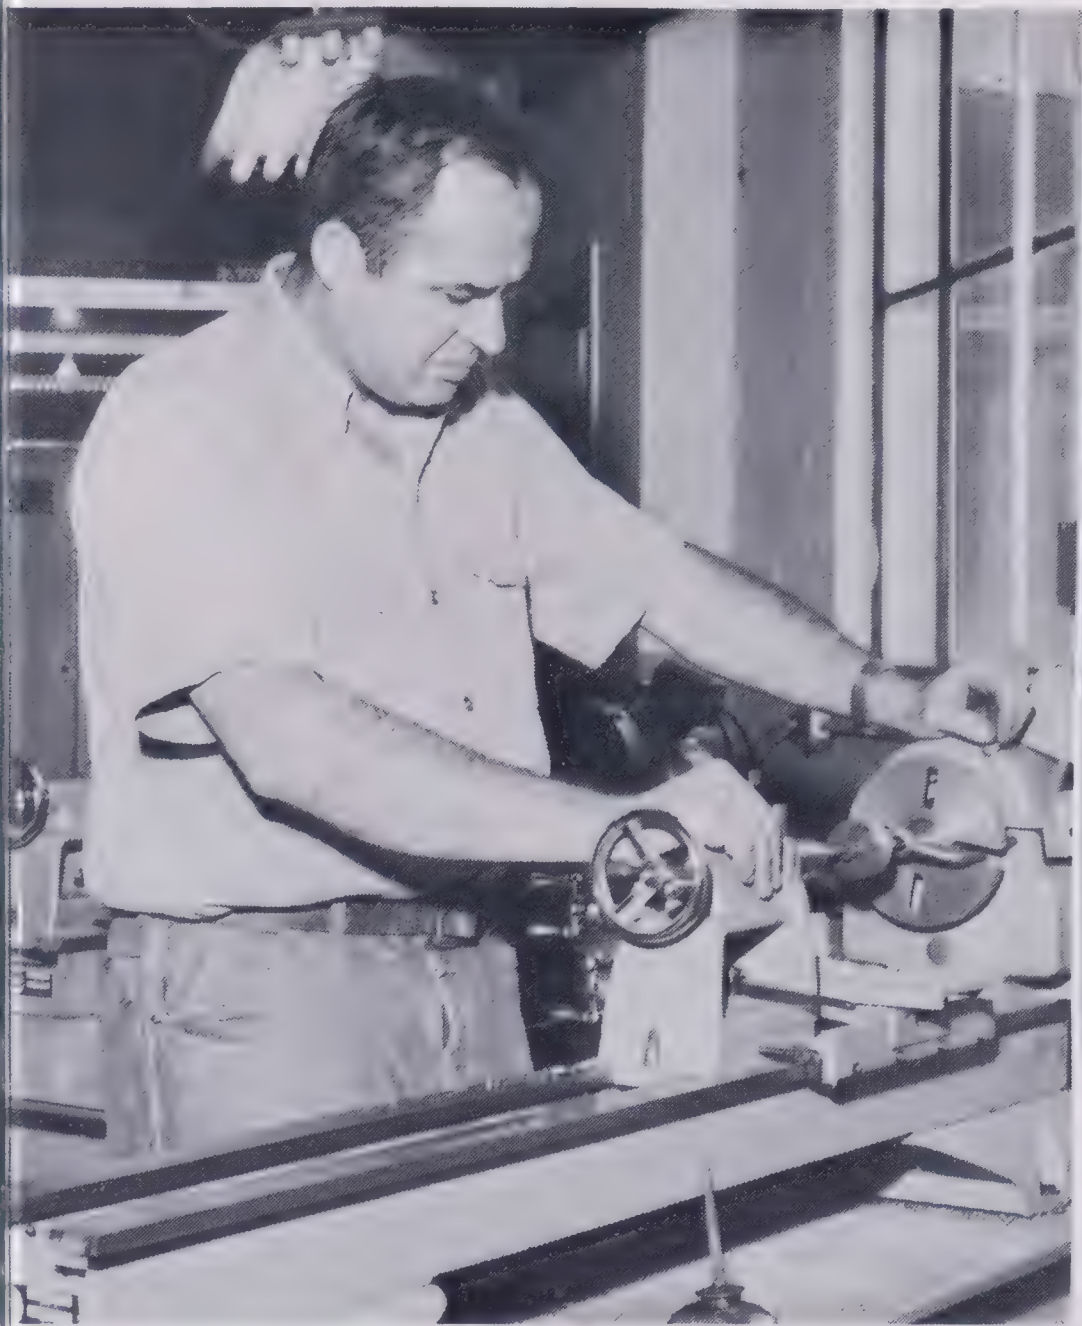

Campus Services

Mr. Donald Wertz, B.A., boiler room engineer, tunes in the network from his radio shack.

Mr. Edward Spady, M.Ed., Industrial Arts instructor, uses some of the new equipment in the metal shop.

The metal shop students develop skills with the new equipment.

Mr. Eugene Wesslen, M.Ed., maintenance engineer, is an avid lover of the outdoors. Above all, he enjoys scaling the heights of Washington's mountains.

Auburn Academy Furniture Becomes a Division of Harris Pine Mills

Mr. James Simpson, general manager, directs production, sales, and all factory labor.

Foremen and other personnel include, Cliff Hayes, Everett Kidder, Pat Gohl, Melden Current, Keith Officer, Russell Mandigo, Ray Drewery, Laurel Thorp, Sig Helland, Bill Morgan, Marvin Creelman, Dale Langseth, Ted Chadwick, Charles Simonds.

Auburn Academy Furniture merged with the well-known Pendleton-based Harris Pine Mills on January 1, 1967. The effects of this action, negotiated by the Washington Conference and Harris Pine Mills, were immediate. Modern pieces of equipment necessary to effect the specialization desired by Harris Pine Mills were shipped to the local plant. In the future the factory will increase sales through new Mid-Western wholesale outlets. For the first time in the Auburn factory's history student-produced maple and walnut furniture was viewed at the National Furniture Manufacturers' Convention in Chicago earlier this year and drew favorable responses there.

Mr. Eldon Spady, accountant, was transferred to the head office at Pendleton in February after three years at the Academy's factory.

Mr. Joe Dickerson serves as automotive mechanic in the Harris Pine Mills garage.

Mr. Dan Graham, salesman for the Washington area, looks with pride at one of his own paintings.

Mr. Russell Slabaugh served the factory for fourteen years as purchasing agent and designer.

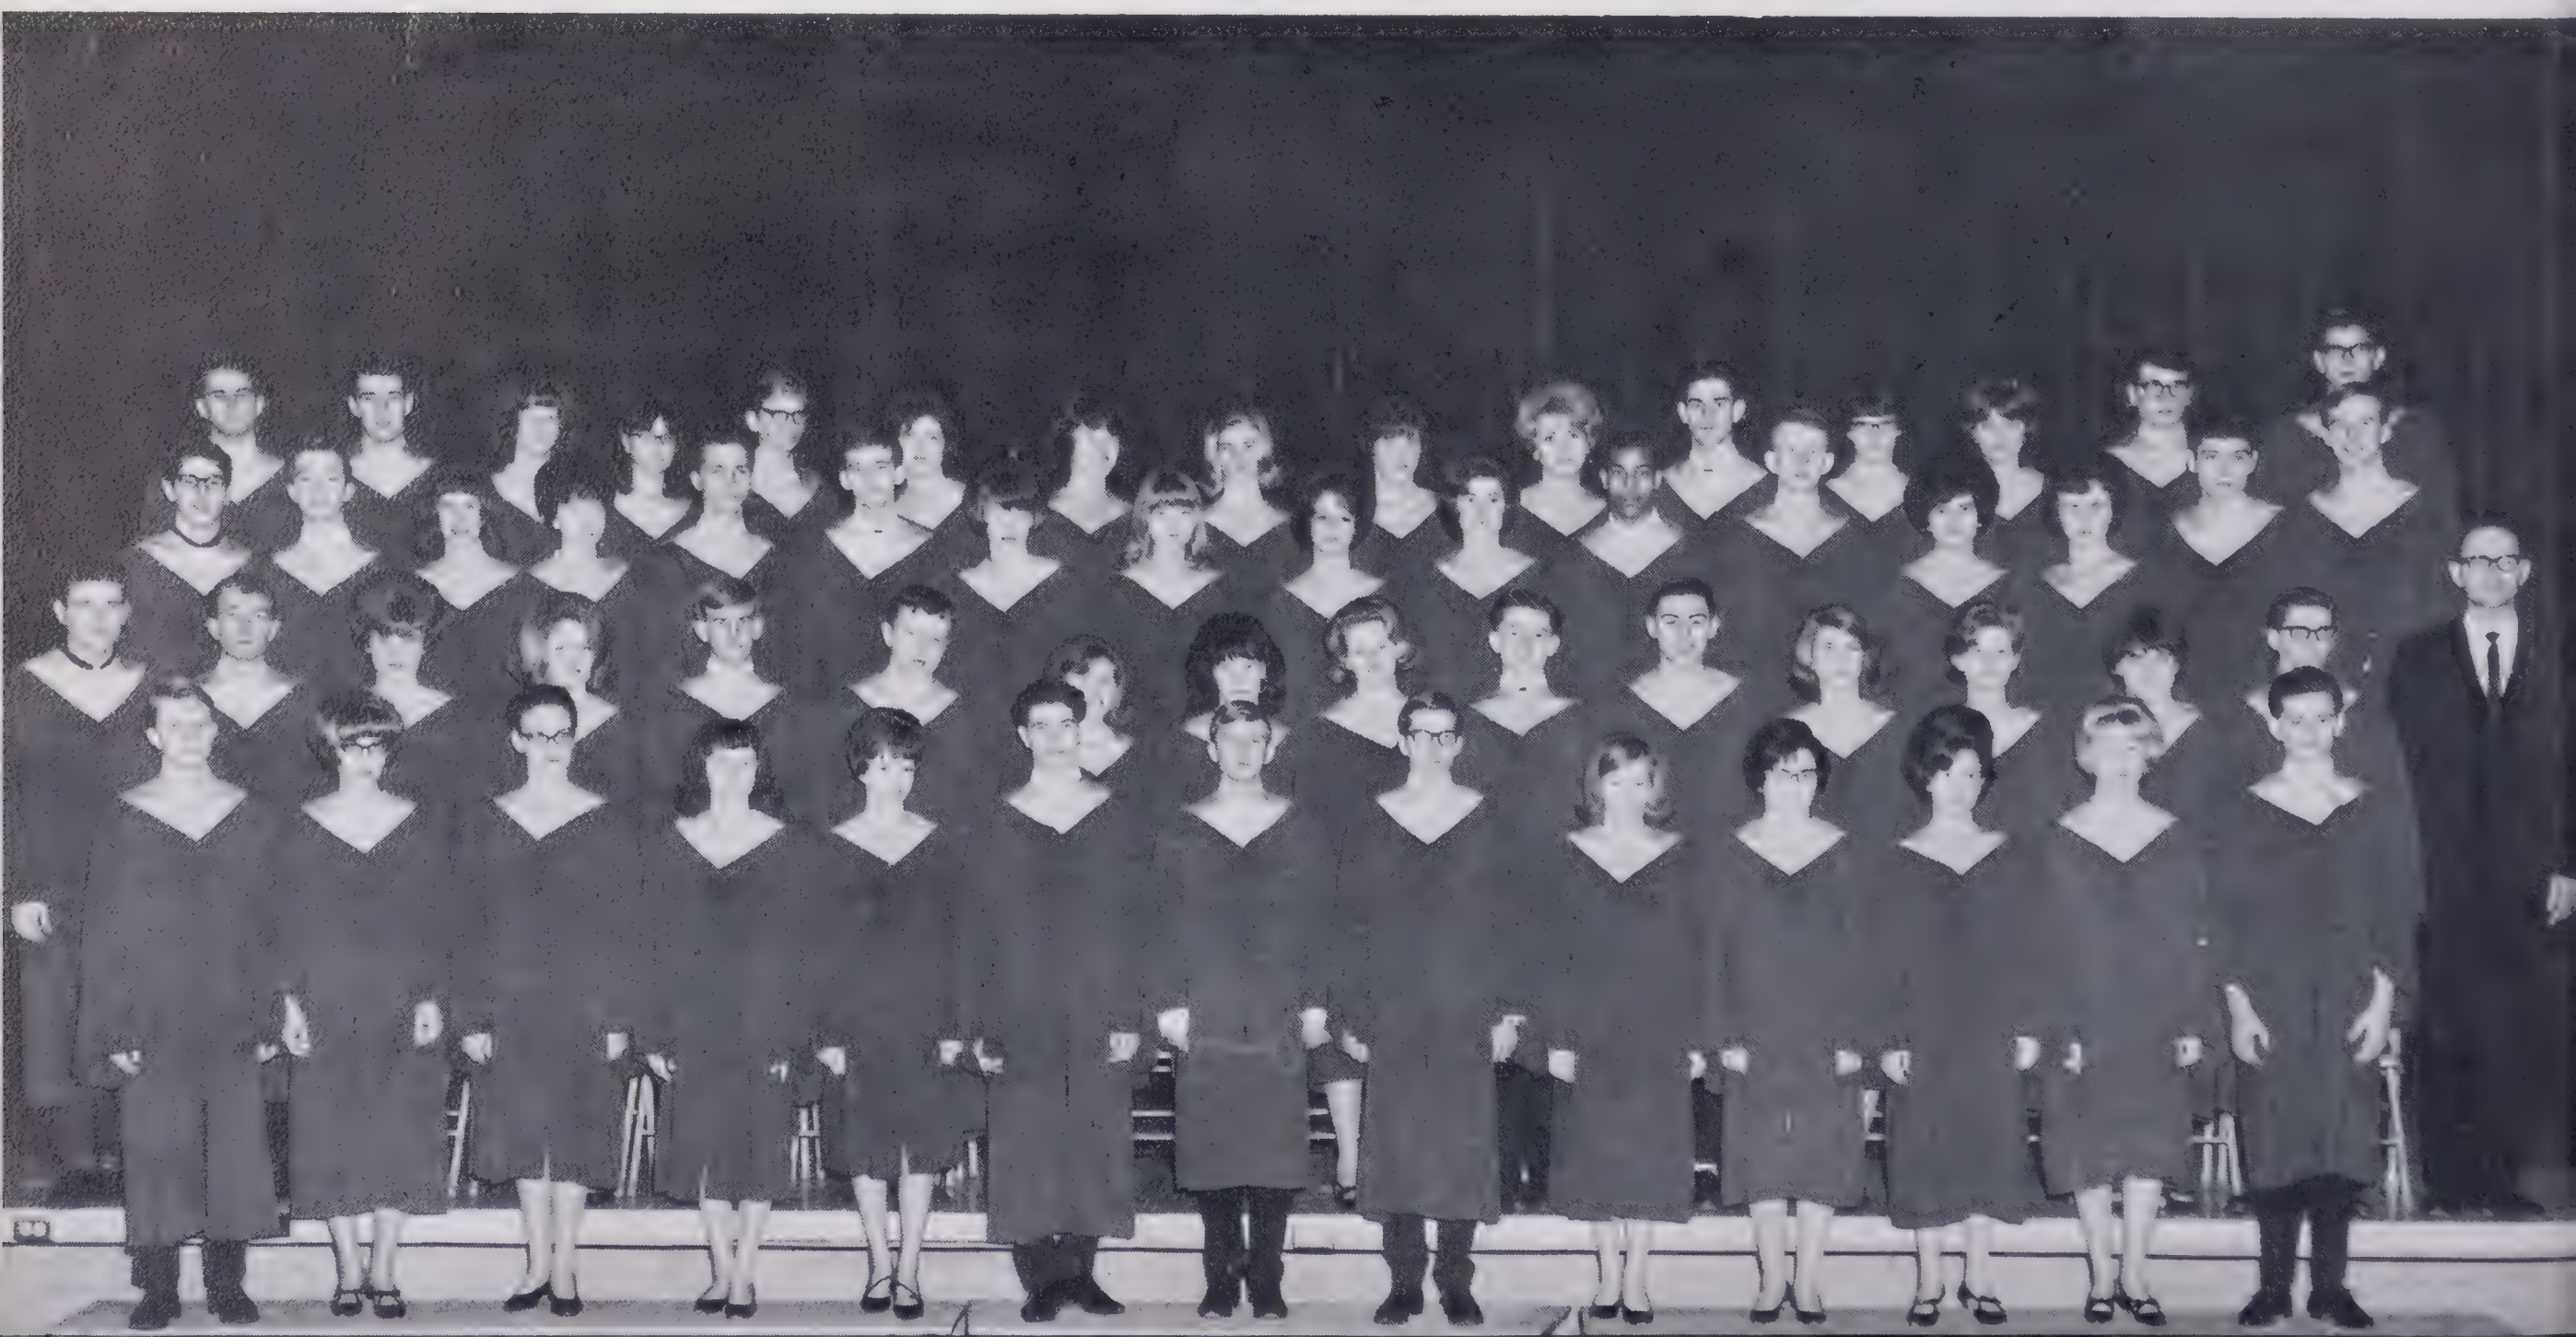

Activities

Meeting each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday to practice a few songs doesn't make a choir a choir. What does make a choir? It takes a lot of work. But doesn't it take more than that? Doesn't it take a devotion that is carried outside of class? Doesn't it mean that each has to put every ounce of effort into hitting those high or low notes? Doesn't it mean one has to keep his eyes fixed on the director, watching his every move? Doesn't it mean hard practice to breathe in that "oh so perfect" way? What does make a choir a choir? Loyalty to the group and combined effort, with none wasted, are essential. In Auburn Academy's choir there is no half-heartedness. Each member takes from himself all he can possibly give and then gives more. This is what makes a choir a choir. This is what is found at Auburn Academy.

The old barbershop quartet sound has been given a new ring by the Senior Quartet. Dennis Ondrejka, Jim Reinking, Gordon Deapen, and Dennis Rootvik are a main attraction in their bright red jackets.

Music

The Senior Trio, Marilyn Luce, Marilyn McCoy, and Jan Fletcher, harmonize in their own special way to tease the ears of their listeners.

People express themselves creatively through music. Appreciating the thoughts and feelings portrayed in every production, whether on a large or small scale, is an art that all may possess. A man living behind the Iron Curtain doesn't have to understand the words to "The Star-Spangled Banner" to gain the feeling of freedom and liberty. The Universal Language is spoken by all people throughout all times. The Sylvan Chorus is only one of many groups that speaks this language.

A much debated question is why the Sylvan Chorus is so called. According to the dictionary, "sylvan" pertains to or of the forest; however, the word "sylvan" as used by the Chorus refers to a bird. Auburn Academy's sylvan bird is very much in song as it wings its way into the hearts of those who pause from their labor to listen.

The Universal Language

Auburn Academy's concert band participated in the Music Festival in Rainier Auditorium and gave several concerts during the year.

Band Creates Musical Atmosphere

Who needs long hair or funny costumes to be a crowd pleaser? Certainly the trumpet trio, Mike Stone, Bob VanDenburgh, and Leonard Pierce didn't.

Music speaks to all. Each person has the right to interpret as he wishes the muted tones of the clarinet and French horn, the bold accent of the trumpets and trombones, and the violent surge of the percussion.

In this interpretation, the personalities of the composer, conductor, and individual players are combined with the listeners mood to create just the right atmosphere. Music is just people speaking to one another.

With baton raised, Mr. Leland Quinn is master and figurative creator of the sounds and melodies produced.

Formerly only the first chairs of the concert band made special appearances; however, this year a touring band was organized and gave numerous performances throughout the state and in British Columbia.

Voice of Youth

Voice of Youth officers were: Elder Norton, advisor; Jim Reinking, chaplain; Sue Helland, vice-president; Eileen Stensaa, secretary; and Chuck Lynch, president.

Elder Hiten, speaker for the Fall Week of Prayer, shows Eileen Stensaa an interesting version of the Bible.

Wednesday through Sabbath, student Week of Prayer speakers were: Jim Reinking, Jeralyn Sauder, Jim Stephens, Faye Humphrey, Al Lloyd, Renee' Montgomery, Ron Canaday, and Dennis Rootvik.

Each year brings inspiration from Weeks of Devotion conducted by the students and by visiting personnel. In the autumn Week of Prayer Elder Hiten explained the steps on the ladder of a balanced Christian life. During the winter session the students discussed the challenging question, "Is Christ Too Old?" With spring came Elder Webb with his heart-warming messages centered on basic Christian realities.

Elder Ed Webb, M.V. Secretary of the North Pacific Union, conducted the Spring Week of Prayer.

ASAA, the Student Senate, and the Student-faculty Council are important to maintain the democratic system. Working out student body business, spiritual and everyday problems and relationships are essential. From the minds of a few come the policies for the entire student body.

The Student Senate is the inner voice of the ASAA. It speaks in representation of the classes to carry out all business functions.

Rainier Vista

Mrs. Crays, sponsor, Nadine Wheeler, copy editor, and Prudy Ehrhardt, typist, attempt to meet a deadline. Not shown: Marilyn Anibal, copy editor.

The Rainier Vista is the story of youth preparing for wider vistas. Bound between its covers are the treasured memories of an eventful year. As each page is turned in reflection, one remembers the people—the friends—the places—the rewards of Christian education.

Editor Sauder relieved of duties for a day is charmed by Mt. Rainier's beauty.

The job before the Rainier Echoes staff is an endless one. Typewriters clatter, delinquent reporters rush in with last-minute stories, and the editor's patience is exhausted after being long tried. Finally, very late, the proof is ready for printing. Immediately new assignments are given, leads are followed up and on it goes week after week throughout the school year.

Rainier Echoes

Jim Becraft, paper boy of the month, staggers under a load of the latest issue of Rainier Echoes.

Mr. Larry Hasse is prepared for a cold weekend.

Jerry Wentland aims carefully to make the basket and score for his team during donkey basketball.

On the Go

Never pausing for rest, always active, having fun, loving life--these are people. Whether astride a donkey at the game, wrestling sleeping bags, or skimming across Sunset Lake, people are living life to its fullest.

Suitcases, skis, and sleeping bags were the requirements for a weekend of good times at Sunset Lake.

Gliding smoothly over the surface of the water feels like riding on Cloud Nine.

A couple of hungry students, Bill George and Jim Holik, make friends with head cook, Mrs. Aime.

A Time. . .

. . . of celebration is a festival. And what time is better for a festival than in the fall when there is a whole year to look forward to.

Even fun things have their ups and downs.

Kathy Fletcher and Terry Bock dressed to reflect an era gone by.

Elder Berry's booth attracted all kinds of people.

The Cabrales sisters delight the audience with Tinikling, a favorite pastime of their native country, the Philippines.

Auburn at Its Best

Things may receive casual observance but the people establish a vital connection of hand and heart. Each talent offered deserves merit.

Batman and Robin visit Auburn briefly in the familiar forms of Robbie Lloyd and Gordie Deapen.

The co-ordinating skills of Ed Schetter and son reveal the difficult aspects of Yoga at N. S. A. program.

Brenda Barnhart sets the words of a timely phrase into the new bulletin board, donated by the Class of '46.

Doug Jahnke, member of the P.A. staff, adjusts a microphone prior to a chapel service.

Students Reflect Academy Life

A warning to Rhonda Braaten might be, "Discretion is the better part of valor!" since Mike Zapara obviously (?) has an edge in both determination and accuracy.

A Visit to "Enchanted Isles"

The air, electric with excitement and anticipation, was blended with exotic perfumes, the rustle of silk, and a touch of romance to make the Zeta Kappa banquet a "rememberable" event.

Reflected in the glass is Prudy Ehrhardt adding one last touch before...

Talent

The Junior Trio, accompanied by Ryan Kwiram, took the audience to "Blue Hawaii."

All were swept to England's shore as Chuck Lynch departed on a "Capitol Ship."

Sentimentality toward the Old West was revived by Gordon Reoch and associates in a tale of "Old Shep."

A moment's pause at the ski lodge before hiking to the rope-tows. A full day stretched out before them and they were not willing to waste any of it.

The Snowy Slopes Beckon

The exhilarating feeling of the wind whistling past and tangling the hair, of lungs being filled with cool snappy air, of the sharp brief pain of a tumble, all belonged to those who went on the ski picnic at Paradise. The unexpected lurch of the rope-tow, the skis slipping for an instant on an icy spot, the uncontrollable spinning on a saucer, were among the chit-chat on the return trip to school. The awesome heights of Mt. Rainier were indeed a challenge to novice and experienced skiers.

"Old pros" Eileen Stensaa and Kathy Brown prepare for the spills.

Impatient skiers were kept busy at the rope-tows.

Yachiyo Saito displayed her skill at playing the Okoto, a thirteen-string harp.

Those attending the Junior-Senior Banquet were charmed by the lilting music of the Okoto and the soft glow of the hanging lanterns in a far away place--Japan.

Ann Kirkendall and her escort, Bob Butterfield, were directed by their "oriental" guide, Evonne Lewis.

Far Away Places

An authentic reproduction of a Japanese ceremonial dance was performed by Masako Kobayashi.

The officers of the Junior and Senior classes dined at the base of Mt. Fuji.

Life as a school girl was portrayed by Jeri Crall, Cathy Crooker, and Pat Daffern as they sang "School Days."

What will the future bring? Perhaps a career as a teacher, helping other children learn as she was once taught.

Then comes the golden moment in the life of any woman—her wedding day. To the strains of "Lohengrin" she pledges her life to the one she loves.

Preparing to serve the ball with a vicious whack is Pam Ludwig.

The courts are bare, the grandstands empty--Mike Funner and Stan Jordan engage in an early morning table tennis match.

Many Thanks. . .

to photographers Mr. Floyd Armstead and Mr. Wesley Parker, to producers R. Wallace Pischel, Inc., and to the Rainier Vista staff for making this 1967 yearbook possible.

People reflect with mingled emotions upon a year that has drifted into the past. In most cases, regret for those things not accomplished is soon forgotten and satisfaction takes its place.

A year has passed that the students can reflect upon proudly. Dorm life, seasoned with laughter, tears, frustration, and fellowship; Weeks of Prayer, with the songs, the prayers, and the Holy Spirit's presence; banquets, class parties, and ordinary play periods intermingled with shouts, gaiety, and quiet times, have all played their part in shaping the future years.

People must reflect with their faces turned to the future. The past study and experience will unite and under God's command will conquer any impending difficulty.

Taking His hand, we may receive the reflection from His character and go forward to a life of successful service.
